There can be a misconception that watercolours need to be delicate in colour and application but no, watercolours can also be bold and strong in colour, and to use them in this way is not to be feared.

This course will be pushing what we do with colour in the watercolour medium to its limits, but not losing touch with the basic fundamentals of working with watercolour, and colour mixing.

So if bold colour is your thing, and watercolour is something to be explored, or explored further this might be a great opportunity to do that.
